Publicly Disclosed Information:

OPI Case Number 23-022

Date: 4/14/2023

ALLEGATIONS:

Employee alleged that they informed management at a county department about violations of law and policy by other staff members during a promotional job interview. Says that an employee asked them to write a false incident report, alleged that in two incidents employees used force without properly reporting it, and in a third incident they were instructed to issue discipline to a resident for something the resident alleged the supervisor had allowed.

FINDINGS:

OPI finds that the instructions on filling out the incident report could be interpreted as an example, not subrogation of a false statement. The two serious incidents were appropriately reported, as evidenced by notations in the State's reporting system. The third incident, even if true would only result in a routine personnel action, and would not be a violation of law.

FINANCIAL IMPACT:

None
